

There is no future without history. In fact, every passing day is engraved in the pages of history. This means that even “today” becomes history. Therefore, great people encourage us to use every minute productively, strive to learn, work hard, prepare bases for the bright future, one day someone’s good name moreover the result of hard work will show its yield and will make not only the current generations but the whole future happy.

It should be noted that it is difficult to step into the future without knowing the history. Today, the team of the Faculty of Software Engineering of Tashkent University of Information Technologies named after Muhammad al-Khwarizmi and a group of youngsters and community activists living in Turkiston mahalla of Yunusabad district visited the historical museum of the Ministry of Information Technologies and Communications.

The museum has a collection of all the communication techniques that have survived to the present day, each of them seems to tell the story of each era. Since these techniques are proving their history, greatness of the history and value of man, that was created as the most cherished creature can be revealed.

All the tools and equipments which were exhibited there were used by our ancestors for many years, each of them has its own utilized period and value, and some of the people who used or created them have already gone down in history, says Sarvar Babakhodjaev the Rector of Tashkent University of Information Technologies named after Muhammad al-Khwarizmi Fayzulla Aripjonov, Vice-Rector for Finance and Economics of the University, gave detailed answers to all the questions of curious youngsters. We think that today’s trip will be remembered by them for a lifetime.

Because it is said that travel deepens your mind and visit purifies your heart. After all, our elders taught us based on their own life lessons and experience.

It should also be noted that a person can achieve everything if he wants. Nowadays all facilities are created for this, and there is no need for excuses. This is evident by observing today's event, which is a travel with the rectors and vice-rectors, professors and teachers of the university, who support every positive idea and goal.

We invite students to such trips, which, of course, may interest those who are interested and even those who are not. Go, come, enjoy. Knowing the history of the place you live in will never embarrass you when travelling abroad. After all, start gaining insights on your own.
